A foreign delegation visited a polling booth in Maharashtra's Raigad parliamentary constituency to get a first-hand experience of India's general elections and was impressed by the enthusiasm of voters, officials said on Thursday. The delegation with representatives from Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Kazakhstan and Zimbabwe also appreciated the meticulous planning by the Election Commission to ensure the process was transparent and peaceful, an official release said.

The foreign delegation visited the Raigad booth under a programme organised by the Election Commission along with poll management bodies of other countries for international cooperation, the release said. The foreign delegates opined that the "enthusiasm of the voters, particularly young electorates, and joy on their face while exercising their franchise is the success of the voter's awareness campaign run by the Election Commission", it said.
