Google in talks with Lava, Dixon, Foxconn to make Pixel in India

Alphabet's Google is scouting for suppliers in India to assemble its Pixel smartphones as it borrows from Apple's playbook to diversify beyond China. Google has initiated early conversations with companies, including homegrown Lava International and Dixon Technologies India as well as Foxconn Technology Group's Indian unit Bharat FIH, people familiar with the matter said, asking not to be named as the matter is private. Google would be the latest global technology player to move production to India.
